

Rock Out to Stop Hep B and Liver Cancer!

Join The California Hep B Free Tour coming to a city or college campus near you!

Hear speakers tell you how you can prevent and treat hepatitis B disease including liver cancer!

Listen to some of the "hott-est" and "rocking-est" bands play on the Hep B Free Tour!

It's estimated that over 2 million American citizens are infected with the hepatitis B virus and yet only 50,000 are under medical treatment. Most infected people do not even know they are infected. Up to 30 percent of chronic Hep B patients will eventually develop liver cancer or other liver disease.

Don't let what you don't know kill you. Talk to your doctor. Get tested for hepatitis B. Then talk to your family, friends and community members.

THE CALIFORNIA HEP B FREE TOUR

By organizing our community, we can help end up to 80 percent of all liver cancers in California, and even the entire nation. A pilot program being launched in San Francisco is starting to do just that. The San Francisco Hep B Free campaign is a community launched and community based effort to spread education and awareness about how to prevent and treat liver disease caused by the hepatitis B virus.

The California Hep B Free Tour will reach out to communities across the state calling on them to join the effort to end hepatitis B disease by spreading awareness through groups and personal contacts. Performing groups along with speakers will draw crowds who will learn more about prevention, screening, vaccination, and treatment of this serious disease while enjoying great shows. The Tour particularly reaches out to college campuses and community events.

The California Hep B Free tour utilizes a network of hepatitis B activists and community groups including Team HBV, the Asian Liver Center at Stanford University, AsianWeek newspaper and other media and local partners.
